KISKA CAPTURED WITHOUT OPPOSITION

ALLIES MOP UP AS JAPS FLEE AT SALAMAUA

Prized New Guinea Air Base Captured; Retreating Foe Abandons Big Guns.

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Aug. 21—The Japanese are in full retreat before bomb-battered Salamaua.

The mountain front line is wide open, they have abandoned heavy guns in precipitate flight toward the last defense barring the allies from the only-prized air base on New Guinea's northeast coast.

Bombed almost daily for months by allied planes, shelled from mountain artillery and under relentless pressure of American and Australian jungle troops, the enemy has been routed from fortified ridge positions.

Heretofore, the allies have moved forward around Bobdubi in jungle country crossed only by trails. Yesterday, they swept forward in a general advance.

Enemy "In Full Retreat"

The enemy, poorly supplied and in dire need of reenforcement, is "in full retreat to his inner citadel of defenses at Salamaua itself," said today's communique from General Douglas MacArthur.

"Machineguns and artillery were abandoned along with more than 350 buried dead. Our troops are mopping up."

(There was no elaboration on the reference to "buried dead." Japanese practice has been to cremate the dead, when possible, and return the ashes to a national shrine in Japan.)

The Japanese crackup at Salamaua was hastened by the virtual wiping out at Wewak, 350 miles up the coast, of an airforce of 225 planes, most of them trapped on the ground, by allied bombers Tuesday and Wednesday.

Wewak Hit Again

Yesterday, big Liberators with a fighter escort went back to Wewak with 66 tons of bombs and added 24 more planes to the 215 previously destroyed there. Attacking air reinforcements which the Japanese had moved in hastily, the raiders probably destroyed six more planes and damaged three at a cost of only two.

In the Solomons sector, enemy planes made an ineffective raid on the American forces which occupied Vella Lavella island last Sunday.

Off the northeastern coast of that island, where guns of American warships killed more than 1,000 Japanese troops trying to land Wednesday from barges, Liberator naval units sank a small enemy ship.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21—The war production board now comes forth with a report from 600 manufacturers—whose war output has been behind schedule—to show why that happened.

The three main causes they gave were lack of manpower, materials shortages and design changes. The survey, just completed, was made by WPB's 13 regional offices among manufacturers from coast to coast.

"Complacency" over good war news as a reason for the production lag appears, when mentioned at all, far down the list of reasons.

But ever since output started to fall behind schedule in the spring, a certain few government officials have repeatedly charged "complacency" as a top factor.

This present report, so far as can be learned, is the only national round-up of reasons obtained by WPB.

Biggest Problem

Lack of manpower was given as the biggest problem in 60 to 70 per cent of the cases reported. This lack included both common labor and skilled labor.

The material shortages, it was emphasized at WPB, meant lack of processed materials rather than raw materials and that again depended on several factors.

For instance: A plant in Detroit might have had to hold up its completed product for lack of steel castings obtained from a Cleveland plant. But that Cleveland plant might not have been able to get its casting finished on time because it lacked sufficient men for the job.

The design changes are in a special class, not likely to be remedied, since they depend on battle experience. As an example: A fighter plane might have proved fast enough but not effective enough because it lacked enough guns. If the Army decided to put those guns on the ship, production would be delayed until the change could be made.

Absenteeism among workers was reported in a number of cities but it was far down on the list of reasons. One conclusion was that absenteeism "tends to increase as the number of women workers rises and is more prevalent in very hot weather."

ALL OHIO SCHOOL BUSES TO GET GAS

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 21—Delbert Woodford, assistant state director of education, said he was informed officially today that all Ohio school buses would get all the gasoline they wish to transport pupils during the coming school year.

The information came from C. R. Hutchins, chief of the school bus section of the office of defense transportation in Washington, Woodford said.

Only Thursday Woodford announced that the ODT had clamped down on issuance of gasoline to school buses and because of it thousands of Ohio children might go without transportation.

All-Cargo Planes Start Coast-to-Coast Service

NEW YORK, Aug. 21—A twin-engine plane was winging its way across country today carrying 2,000 pounds of mail and 2,563 pounds of express to begin regularly scheduled all-cargo flights between New York and Los Angeles, the American Airlines reported.

American Airlines said daily all-cargo flights were scheduled. Capt. Edward C. Webber was at the controls of the plane which left LaGuardia Field New York at 2:05 p. m. (EWT) and was scheduled to reach Los Angeles at 6:04 p. m. (PWT) tonight.

NEW COAL PRICE CONTROLS PLANNED

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21—Props are being prepared to bolster the price ceilings over bituminous coal against the withdrawal Monday midnight of the price floor provided for the last two years by Interior Secretary Ickes' bituminous coal division.

The office of price administration (OPA), an official disclosed today, soon will amend its regulations to make sure that the soft coal price structure will not be upset by expiration of the Guffey act, under which the division has functioned. The changes are deemed necessary because:

1. Some OPA ceiling prices are set on the basis of a certain amount above the floor prices fixed by the division, hence might be shaken by removal of the foundation for the differential.

2. In some cases, the division's minimum prices actually are higher than OPA's maximum prices because the former included cost of transporting coal from some areas to distant markets.

Watch Soften-Up Blows for Signs of Invasion Plans

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Just before I sat down to write this column a New York banker stopped me in Rockefeller Plaza and asked the question which now seems to be seething in every mind:

"Do you believe the western Allies will be able to get ahead with the big job—the invasion of France—this year?" he said.

"The indications are that it's possible," was my reply. "One might make it a bit stronger and say it's even probable, but there's nobody outside the Allied high command who can give a definite answer to that right now."

So that's precisely the way this momentous issue stands. I believe we shall get fair advance warning of any invasion of western Europe.

Advance Signs

That will be in a terrific bombardment of the invasion coast from the air, and perhaps from the sea as well. The German coastal defenses will have to be paralyzed before we can drive the noses of our barges up on the beaches—unless we are prepared to see the tawny sands turned crimson.

When that moment arrives we are likely to get a solution of the mystery of where the Nazi bomber force—if any—has been hiding these many moons. Many observers incline to the idea that Hitler has been holding his badly depleted fleet in reserve for just this great emergency.

That strikes me as a logical assumption. While we don't know the exact condition of the Nazi air navy, we do know that some time ago the Nazis cut their bomber production to a skeleton to permit the manufacture of more fighter planes.

Pending the time of invasion, the Anglo-American Allies are going ahead with their job of softening up Germany by bombing of a destructive power never before seen.

Hitler's basic war industries have been largely rendered impotent. The American and British bombers now are turning their

VICTORY PLANS AT QUEBEC IN FINAL STAGES

Observers Believe Pattern for Next Important War Moves Nearly Complete.

By The Associated Press

QUEBEC, Aug. 21—The pattern for victory appeared today to have been cut by the Quebec war conference.

As the conference neared the stage of public pronouncements by its principals, an air of expectancy pervaded this temporary allied war capital and word spread that news of a new blow against Japan might be forthcoming soon.

This expectation was based on an idea that President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill, having finished their most pressing chores in the field of long-range strategy, were ready to focus attention on more contemporary developments.

Odds and ends of military logistics and strategy which allied experts have been fitting together for 11 days now have been cement into a single mosaic, the best available evidence indicated.

This is the evidence:

1. The end of the conference by next Tuesday definitely is in sight. It was announced that President Roosevelt would spend Wednesday in Ottawa, Canada, address an informal meeting of the Dominion parliament, then head toward Washington. The address will be broadcast by NBC, CBS and Mutual.

2. Presidential Secretary Stephen Early disclosed yesterday that the President and Prime Minister Churchill, by toiling into the early morning hours, had disposed of all immediate matters requiring their attention.

3. Cordell Hull, U. S. secretary of state, arrived yesterday to go over political phases of the war effort with Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden of Britain. They dined and conferred with the Chief Executive and prime minister last night.

4. Allied chiefs of staff met for days before Mr. Roosevelt and Churchill joined forces here to finish charting the next assaults on the axis.

The military work of the Quebec conference was not entirely completed. Chiefs of staffs and the key advisors were to continue consultations during the weekend.

The question of obtaining better teamwork with Russia, some observers here believed, is uppermost among the political considerations confronting the allied leaders here.

Significant in that connection was the first Russian call from any source for a three-way conference among Russia, England and the United States to shorten the war and pave the way for peace on a basis of friendly collaboration. It appeared in an editorial in the Soviet magazine "Work and the Working Class."

OHIO PLANE PLANT GETS STERN WARNING

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Aug. 21—A surprise visit by two members of the Truman war plant investigating committee to the huge Lockland plant of the Wright Aeronautical Corp. last week found only about one-fifth of the employes on one shift working, Sen. Harley Kilgore (D-W. Va.) asserted.

"Some were playing checkers, some were reading, and some were doing nothing," he said.

In yesterday's three-hour public hearing, officials of the Wright company were told, in effect, to get into quality and quantity production at the Lockland plant or the Army would take over.

During the hearing company officials testified present production was one-sixth of that before the Truman senate committee made its first report last month and one-twelfth of capacity.

Chairman Harry S. Truman (D-Mo), at a press conference following the hearing, declared:

"The Lockland plant is one of the most perfectly tooled in the country, but it is also one of the worst managed we have found. There must be improvement of management or the Army will take it over."

Guy W. Vaughn, president of the parent Curtiss-Wright Corp., replying to Senator Kilgore's assertion that idleness was found in the plant last week, stated:

"At the time, we did not have enough work to keep everybody busy because of confusion resulting from reorganization of practices after the first committee report. But we don't dare lay them off. They'd be gone tomorrow and you know what the manpower situation is."

Huber Co. Honors Veteran Employes at Picnic Today

Today has been set aside at the Huber Manufacturing Co., Marion's oldest industrial concern now totally engaged in war production, for the annual employes' picnic and recognition services for veteran employes.

At noon today approximately 85 men in the employe of the concern for 20 years or more were guests of the company at a dinner in the ballroom at Hotel Harding. Among the guests were 11 men affiliated with the concern for 50 or more years. Six of these men are still active at the plant, the other five having retired during the last year.

The company's oldest employe, S. E. Barlow, who has been associated with the concern for 62 years, is among the actives. Others and their respective lengths of service with the company are: John W. Kiehm, 55 years, Otto Ebbing, 54 years, Otto Hittenrauch, 52 years and Leo Hare and John T. Custe, each 52 years.

List of Retired

The inactives include: Charles Wissler, retired paint shop foreman; Thomas McGrath, retired frame shop foreman, Henry Fries, retired screwdriver operating foreman, John Winkler, retired paint shop employe, and Lewis Throckmorton, retired foundry employe.

Mr. Barlow, who joined the company in the summer of 1881 as a painter and rose to the position of president and general manager, attended the banquet at Hotel Harding. He is now a member of the company's board of directors.

To each of the men in the employ of the company for 50 years or more the company will present a $50 war savings bond. At a picnic this afternoon at Garfield park service pins will be presented to men in the employ of the company from five to 50 or more years.

The five year pins are silver, while those denoting 10 to 50 years of service are gold filled. The 50-year pins are inscribed "50 Years Service" with the company name appearing in the center of the pin. In the lower center is a small diamond.

All service pins will be presented at the park.

Plans are being made to accommodate between 1,200 and 1,400 at the picnic which will be at 6 p. m. in Garfield park. Immediately preceding the picnic will be the distribution of service awards and prior to this will be a period of games and contests.

Among the persons expected here for the eight-hour program is Adam Losh of Harrisburg, Pa. For 35 years Mr. Losh has been affiliated with the company as manager of the parts department of the company's Harrisburg branch, but never during that time has he visited the home office and plant. Many persons with whom he has maintained contacts by mail and telephone during his long period of employment with the organization will be meeting him for the first time.

Other out-of-town guests will include John Krause and Del Severns, both of Lansing, Mich. Mr. Kraus, employed by Huber for 38 years, formerly was branch manager at Lansing. Mr. Severns has been connected with the firm for 31 years.

Allies Blasting At Italian Rail Lines; Ships Shell Cities

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Aug. 21 — The sky battle for southern Italy has fully begun, with the allies shifting the focus of their overwhelming bomber power to the objective of knocking out the strategic railway connections with the north.

While American warships, moving at will along the Italian toe, poured concentrated fire into the left side of the "Helix Triangle" of the lower Peninsula, allied headquarters announced today that heavy new blows were struck by day and night bombers at already battered railway lifelines of the defenders in the Naples area.

The American naval units again nailed fortified points and railway targets at Gioia Tauro on the gulf of Gioia, 20 miles northeast of Messina, in a blasting of the mainland, while British sea forces sank seven landing craft off Scalea in a night action.

Aversa, Benevento and Villa Literno—all in the Naples area—were swept by waves of medium bombers and fighters in day assaults and by RAF and Canadian Wellingtons striking at night.

In another main operation American Warhawks, in a slash at the enemy's air force, bombed the vicinity of Monserrato airdrome in southeastern Sardinia.

Meanwhile fighter-bombers and Intruders held their dominant position in the sky over the reddening Italian toe, attacking trains and small boats off the coast.

"Induced" Savings and Higher Taxes in New Proposal

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21—A double-barreled war financing program based on "induced" savings and higher individual and corporate income taxes was advanced today by an influential lawmaker who estimated it would bring in about $40,000,000,000 a year.

He declared that if the plan were adopted, and at the same time economies were effected to cut government spending by $6,000,000,000 to $8,000,000,000 a year, "we ought to come pretty close to bringing into the treasury just about as much money as we are paying out for the war and for civilian government."

Although for personal reasons the legislator was not ready to permit the use of his name in connection with the proposal, he indicated he would bring it out into the open before congress returns Sept. 14 from its summer recess.

Under the plan, taxpayers would have a dollar-and-cents inducement to put their extra money into non-negotiable bonds payable only after the war, because they would be allowed, when figuring their income tax, to deduct from their taxable income an amount equal to half of their bond purchases—up to 15 per cent of their taxable income.

The lawmaker, who has played an important part in writing recent tax measures, said that in connection with the induced savings plan it should be possible to raise the normal individual income tax rate from 6 per cent to 8 or 10 per cent, the corporate normal tax from 40 to 45 per cent, and possibly the excess profits tax from 90 to 95 per cent.

MAY CUT WAITING PERIOD

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21—The office of price administration today authorized local war price and rationing boards to waive prescribed waiting periods in handling applications for replacements of lost or stolen food ration books in cases of "extreme hardship."

AIR FORCES DEPOT CALLS FOR WORKERS

Civil Service Jobs Open to Men and Women.

An urgent appeal for men and women workers to help operate the new Army Air Forces depot at the Scioto Ordnance Plant site was issued today by Major R. G. Shank, commanding officer of the depot.

Lack of sufficient operating forces is the major cause for a delay in starting the operation of the depot, he said. Both men and women are needed, and most of them will not be required to have particular skills, as most of the personnel will be trained for their duties. About 60 per cent of the employes will be women.

All of the depot jobs are under civil service, and employment is being handled through the United States Employment Service office at Center and State streets.

The depot will handle spare parts for a type of airplane motor widely used in pursuit ships, and will distribute the parts all over the world.

SOVIETS PUSH KHARKOV DRIVE

Only 13-Mile Gap in Circle; Nazis Say Reds Attacking on Six Fronts.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 21 — Pointing apparently for Konotop, key junction on the Kiev-Bryansk railway 170 miles northwest of Kharkov, Russian troops today were on the march deep into the heart of the Ukraine.

They stormed into Lebedin, 100 miles northwest of Kharkov and midway between captured Akhtyrka and Sumy, in a series of smashing tank and infantry attacks, Moscow announced in a special communique.

Konotop lies 70 miles to the northwest of Lebedin and its capture would menace the whole Nazi supply setup in the Ukranian theater.

London reports, meanwhile, indicated that Soviet troops had encircled all but 13 miles of Kharkov itself.

Attack on 1,000-Mile Front

(A Berlin broadcast, quoted by NBC, said the Russians "are attacking furiously at six widely separated points along a 1,000-mile front" between Leningrad and Murmansk, along the Finnish border in the far north. The report, if true, means the Russians are opening a new offensive in the north.)

A total of 6,100 Nazi troops were killed in Friday's fighting on all fronts, according to a Moscow communique recorded by the Soviet radio monitor.

On the Bryansk front, the Germans were throwing strong forces against the steadily advancing Soviet columns, but the Russian war bulletins said they were forced back. In the Spas Demensk offensive the Russians were striking out for Smolensk, another vital Nazi anchor, 75 miles to the northwest. This advance threatened a whole segment of German defenses between Bryansk and Smolensk.

Fierce Tank Battle

Northwest of Kharkov a fierce battle of tanks resulted in 45 German units being knocked out by Soviet fire, and the enemy gave way before the slashing Red drive which occupied more than 20 towns and villages, the Russian communique said.

East and southeast of Kharkov Soviet columns were reported only a few miles from the outskirts, while in the northeastern suburbs Red army shock troops continued their street-to-street battle against units of the German garrison forces.

CIVIL AIR PATROL SHOW PLANS ARE COMPLETED

Program To Be Given at Airport Sunday.

Arrangements have been completed by the Civil Air Patrol for the airshow to be staged at the municipal airport tomorrow afternoon as an incentive to boys of near-draft age to enlist in the reserve of the Army Air Force.

During the afternoon recruiting and information service for the Army Air Forces will be conducted by the CAP. The service is intended to enlist men of 17. All young men who volunteer for enlistment in the reserves during the airshow tomorrow will be given a free airplane ride.

The show is to include acrobatics, message pickup and message dropping.

The general public and young men who are between their seventeenth and eighteenth birthdays are invited by the Marion Squadron to attend the show.

Huge Ship Construction Program Wins Approval

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21—The combined chiefs of staff have given final approval to a United States merchant ship construction program calling for more than 20,000,000 deadweight tons in 1944.

Although no public announcement was made, informed officials said today the chiefs of staff approved the Maritime Commission's new program last week.

AMERICANS AND CANADIANS SAY ALL JAPS GONE

Former Strong Point for Foe Revealed to Have Been Under Heavy Attack.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21 — Sweeping the Japanese from their last known foothold in the Aleutian Islands, American and Canadian troops have occupied—without opposition—the important base of Kiska after a terrific bombardment of invader positions.

The victorious advance came 14 months after Tokyo first reported landings in the Aleutian chain stretching from Alaska westward toward Japan's home island.

Making the announcement today, the Navy said landings on the narrow beaches of the rocky island were made Aug. 15 and "no Japanese were found."

Indications were, the Navy said, that the Japanese only recently had fled from their positions laboriously built in the rocky terrain and along the beaches.

Under Bombardment

"Presumably," the Navy's communique said, "the heavy bombardments by our ships and planes that have been carried on for some time and the danger to their supply lines by our capture of Attu made the enemy positions on Kiska untenable."

Those bombardments, unreported in the last three weeks, were among the heaviest ever made on enemy positions in the Pacific.

Army and Navy bombing planes during the period from Aug. 1 to Aug. 14, the Navy said, struck 100 times, dropping ton after ton of bombs on the Japanese at Kiska.

Surface units joined in the pounding of the enemy garrison, standing off shore and hurling shells from their big guns onto the island in 15 separate bombardments.

Escape Unexplained

How the Japanese escaped from Kiska under the heavy bombings and bombardments was not explained. The Navy said, however, that it was possible that enemy surface ships, taking advantage of the heavy fogs of the North Pacific, slipped in to evacuate remnants of the garrison estimated at one time to have included 10,000 Japanese troops.

Explaining the three weeks of silence on the Aleutians campaign, the Navy said that air and surface bombardments in the latter part of July had destroyed Japanese radio equipment, cutting Kiska off from communication with the enemy's homeland.

Any mention of the progress of the campaign, the Navy continued, "would have conveyed information to the enemy which he otherwise would not have had."

Reason for Silence

Silence, the Navy said, particularly was desirable during the period immediately prior to the landings when transports were in areas exposed to submarine attack and while they were unloading troops and equipment.

The enemy evacuation represented the first time officially reported in the war that the Japanese have given up a major base without a fight. Previously on Attu they had fought almost to the last man, and in the final organized resistance on Attu some enemy soldiers had battled with bayonets tied to sticks.

The last resistance reported on Kiska was on Aug. 13 when light anti-aircraft fire was encountered by bombers and fighters which that afternoon carried out nine bombing and strafing attacks on the island, destroying buildings at Gertrude Cove and North Head by direct hits and setting others afire.

Many Heavy Attacks

That bombing assault was light, however, compared with other attacks during the Aug. 1-14 period. On Aug. 10, the bombings reached a peak with 24 separate assaults on the enemy's installations. The bombers carrying out those missions encountered light anti-aircraft fire and started many fires.

The chronology of the aerial blitz also showed 18 assaults during 12 hours Aug. 4, starting many fires and causing numerous explosions. On Aug. 11, bombers 21 times roared over Kiska and the Navy reported "fires were started in all areas and considerable debris was observed in enemy emplacements on little Kiska."

The following day, heavy medium and dive bombers accompanied by fighting planes went back 20 more times starting many additional fires. Scattered throughout the two week period were other smaller assaults of one to four raids in a single day.

The unopposed conquest of Kiska was carried out by Canadian and American troops under direct command of Vice Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid, commander of the North Pacific fleet, with guidance from Admiral Chester

Priorities of the Spirit

A SERMONETTE

By DR. S. M. INGMIRE

Pastor of Epworth Methodist Church

Brethren I count myself not to have apprehended; but this one thing I do. . . . Philippians 3:13.

IN THE time of war we learn that there are certain priorities set up for us by the government. This is necessary if there is to be enough goods for the war effort. Especially is this true in a time of global war. We bow graciously and willingly to the demands of the war machines which swallow a great share of the goods that in time of peace we as citizens consumed in peaceful pursuits.

Not only is this true of materials but we recognize the fact that there must be priorities in manpower. The family in wartime is called to make great sacrifices by making adjustments so that the mother becomes the breadwinner as well as the caretaker of the home. The husband (the word is a derivitive of the word houseband or one who binds the home together) leaves his home to go into battle to protect it.

IN CONTRAST to World War I this time there is a consciousness that it is possible to win a war but not win the peace. There are certain spiritual values that must have priority claim on human personality or permanent results cannot be obtained. It may be necessary to have a preponderance of arms to overcome an enemy's resistance but the only permanent way to conquer an enemy is to make him your friend. Abraham Lincoln is reported to have said when asked why he put one of his bitterest enemies in a responsible position, that he did so because he could overcome his opposition the best by making him a friend. In the last analysis this war will only be won when we have learned to cooperate with all peoples around the globe.

The Christian life has always been a way of Priorities. "No man can serve two Masters," said Jesus. "Seek ye first the Kingdom and His Righteousness." Paul's words ring out from the prison walls after he had his plans defeated; "This one thing I do forgetting those things that are behind and stretching forward to the things that are before, I press on toward the Goal unto the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

ONE priority for the Christian especially in these troubled times, should be the time for reflection and meditation. Goethe said "Without absolute solitude I am unable to produce anything at all." The Christian should have moments of relaxation and rest by drawing apart for reflection.

However we are social creatures and live in a world where we must adjust ourselves to others. From the beginning of Hebrew history we have the words in the Holy Writ "It is not good for man to live alone." Call it fellowship or just plain friendship the Christian needs this balance that is found in assembling ourselves together for mutual spiritual help. The real test of a democracy is whether people have learned to govern themselves for the good of society. Certainly in a Christian democracy there is need for the play and interplay on human personality. In fact there should be priorities on certain action patterns of life which tend to promote feelings of Christian comradship among people of like mindedness.

Church To Map Year's Work at Retreat Sunday Afternoon

A retreat at which committees of Central Christian church will plan the year's program will be held tomorrow afternoon in St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church on the Firstenberger pike east of Marion on State Route 98. Rev. Eldred Johnston, pastor of the Christian church, explained choosing the rural church for the retreat for its favorable location away from distracting noises and disturbances of the city.

Members of the committees will get goals for the year's work and plan procedures by which goals may be reached.

Meeting at Central church at 1:45 p. m. to "share the ride," those attending will proceed to St. John's church where the program will open at 2:15 with Rev. Johnston explaining the purpose of the retreat. Committees will meet in separate groups to plan their respective programs at 2:45 and at 3:15 a worship service will be held with Rev. Frank Helme of the West Fourth Avenue Christian church, Columbus, as guest speaker. Refreshments will be served at the close.

Committees with chairmen and members include worship, Ollie Schneider, Milton Baker, Delmar Dulin, Mrs. S. J. Napoli, Misses Eva Hinze and Dorothy Thew; property, J. T. Bargar, Millard Hunt, Frank Fairchild, Elmer Weimer, Ollie Schneider; education, Mr. Weimer, Miss Luella Scholl, Mrs. Mildred Fout, Miss Catherine Thew; membership, Lawrence Sager, Harold Patrick, Mrs. Ella Boyer, Robert Tarbill, John Sloan, Mrs. Glenn Walraven, Miss Mary Belle Eberhart; evangelistic, Emmett Hollandshead, Mrs. U. E. Hootman, Kenneth Shults, Miss Carol Whirrett, Paul Emery, Mrs. Harrod Geissler; missions, Melvin Keeran, H. J. Hartsell, Mrs. George Pickering, Mrs. Ernest Elliott, Mrs. Oma Jackson; finance, Paul Frye, E. D. Martin, Oscar Cross, William Hamor, Louis Sickel, Mrs. Mable Wilson, Mrs. Jesse Ansley, Miss Tincie Zeigler. Rev. Johnston and Cutler McGrew as minister and chairman of the official board are ex officio members of all committees.

Public and Parochial Schools Prepare for New Term Opening

The first two weeks in September will find hundreds of boys and girls of school age treking back to the city and county schools after a summer's vacation spent in work and play. It has been a different kind of a vacation for most of the teen-age pupils, many of whom have spent the "vacation" working in industrial plants, on war jobs, in business places and on farms. For the juveniles it has been, for the most part, a stay-at-home vacation with perhaps occasional trips to swimming resorts, picnics at the city or roadside parks and other "close-to-home" recreation.

According to plans decided upon by the city board of education earlier in the summer, the Marion public schools will open Monday, Sept. 13. The county schools will open Sept. 7, the day after Labor day. D. T. Mills, superintendent of the county schools, states. The pupils of the grades in St. Mary parochial school will return to school on Tuesday, Sept. 7 and the high school term will open on Monday, Sept. 13, Rev. Father William J. Spickerman, head of the school said today.

Few Vacancies

Despite a shortage of teachers throughout the country both the public and county schools are practically staffed at the present time, school authorities state. Supt. E. E. Holt and Superintendent Mills have spent the vacation period lining up teachers for the 1943-44 term with the result that to date there is one vacancy to be filled in the city school and four in the county. These will be filled by the opening date for school, it is expected. The drafting of men in the armed forces, enlistment of women in the WAC, WAVES and other branches of service, men and women going into war industries and other fields offering higher wages resulted in numerous changes in both the city and county teaching personnel during the past school year.

Added to the public school program this year will be the weekday religious instruction period sponsored by the Marion County Council of Churches.

In the county schools the turnover in teaching personnel is one of the largest, if not the largest in the school history. To date there have been 52 changes in the 148 teaching positions. There still are four vacancies to be filled. Changes in the school heads include the placing of Herbert Moore, formerly at Prospect, as superintendent of the Martel school, succeeding Gail Ferris, who has been frozen in agricultural work in Defiance county, and the hiring of B. F. Bemiller of Galion as superintendent at Meeker. Mr. Bemiller succeeds Paul Scherk who joined the staff of the Ashland schools.

While no formal survey has been made, schools in the county will operate on fast time, at least for the present, Supt. Mills said.

Bus Times Unchanged

Unless unforseen circumstances arise the school bus schedules will remain the same and there will be no reduction in the gas allotment for drivers, Superintendent Mills stated.

Just what effect the employment of students of high school age in industry will have on the school enrollment, remains to be seen, school authorities say.

Plumbing Development Foreseen After the War

"The plumbing industry stands on the threshold of a greater development than it has ever had in the past," said Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the Chicago board of health, in an address at the sixty-first annual convention of the National Association of Master Plumbers in Chicago recently.

"When the war is over," Dr. Bundesen said, "many countries will have seen enough of the plumbing equipment provided for the comfort and safety of our soldiers and sailors that they, too, will want American plumbing in their homes, factories and business establishments."

STORAGE SUGGESTION

To guard against deterioration of cottons and linens in storage, launder them to free the fabrics from sizing or finishing material, then store them in the dark, and at as low a temperature as convenient.

Make It LAST!

Your Electric Cords

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Features Writer

Your electric cords and plugs will work longer if handled carefully.

If you have a switch at the outlet, it should be turned off before any equipment is connected. Otherwise a sparking between the metal prongs and plug will slowly destroy the terminals.

Never pull the cord to disconnect the plug. Grasp the plug and, if it should stick, rock it gently from side to side as you pull to loosen one connection at a time.

If the cord accidentally becomes soaked with water, be sure never to handle the connected cord with your bare hands. A thick pad of dry paper should be used to prevent shock. Don't even handle a dry connected cord with wet hands. Water, electricity, and the human body are often a fatal combination.

When not in use the cord should be hung loosely, and stored in a cool, dry, clean place. Rubber-covered cords last longer in the dark.

Because of the scarcity of labor and materials the number of new wall outlets is limited. Extension cords are being used more widely. These cords have to be used with caution and insulation should be inspected from time to time to be sure it has not cracked, frayed or worn thin.

If the cord is run around the room, it should be attached to the baseboard with rubber or fiber insulated fastenings.

DELIVERY DEADLINE SET ON STOVES, HEATERS

Rationing of Items To Start Aug. 24.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 21—Dealers in new domestic cooking stoves and space heaters operating in the Columbus area who have already received approval on PD-851 applications from the war production board for the sale and delivery of such equipment were warned today that delivery must be made to the consumer by 12:01 a. m., Aug. 24.

E. J. Mulligan, manager of the Columbus district WPB office, stated that unless dealers made delivery before the specified deadline, WPB approval would be invalid and the equipment would automatically come under supervision of the office of price administration. This equipment is to be rationed as of Aug. 24 and thereafter sale and delivery will be controlled by OPA.

Applications for new domestic cooking stoves and space heaters presented to the WPB marked for delivery subsequent to Aug. 23 will be denied, Mr. Mulligan stated, and they will be referred to OPA for consideration.

BIGGER CUT NEEDED

In spite of fuel oil shortages, there are still too many home owners who are trying to keep their homes comfortably heated through the use of oil-fired heating equipment, FHA officials point out.

CHIMNEY ON INSIDE WALL SAVES FUEL

While a chimney may be on an outside wall or an inside wall, the latter is preferable from the standpoint of fuel economy, says the Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau.

Research work in the I-B-R Research Home at the University of Illinois, the bureau points out, has shown that a chimney placed near the center of the house will radiate heat into the house, thus effecting substantial economies in fuel.

The useful heat produced by an inside chimney varies with the temperatures of the gases of combustion inside of the chimney. Inasmuch as the combustion of oil normally produces a higher stack temperature, it follows that a house equipped with an oil burner will show a larger fuel saving from an inside chimney than a house burning coal or gas.

Just as the emphasis in the post-war period will be on a heating plant that is readily convertible from one fuel to another, so the chimney, too, should be adaptable to any fuel, the bureau advises, in cautioning post-war builders to have chimneys made large enough for the combustion of coal instead of limiting them to the smaller diameter sufficient for gas burning.

Another point in connection with the chimney and fuel economy, is the importance of having a fireplace equipped with a damper.

WHEAT PRICE PLAN FACES LONG DELAY

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21—Unless War Food Administrator Marvin Jones acts soon, farmers will have to decide how much land to seed to winter wheat without any assurance as to the price they may expect at harvest time next year.

Winter wheat, which takes up the bulk of the domestic bread grain crop, is planted in September and early October, harvested the following June and July.

The war food administration (WFA) is drafting plans for a 1944 farm production program designed to provide a record output of food, including an expansion in wheat from 54,000,000 acres planted for harvest this year to 68,000,000 acres next year.

The program will carry a schedule of farm price supports of minimum price guarantees for the various commodities. Those price guarantees are designed to assure farmers a market for all they produce and a "fair" return.

Aides of Jones have indicated, however, that the program will not be announced until after he has had an opportunity to lay it before congress. The lawmakers are scheduled to return Sept. 14. It is quite possible that the program, which would require upwards of a billion dollars to finance, may not clear congress until long after the winter-wheat planting season has passed.

Farmers are assured about 92 per cent of the parity price for this year's wheat crop. A government loan program has put a floor under the market at about 85 per cent of parity. Government benefit payments of about 8.2 cents a bushel bring the guaranteed return to 92 per cent of parity.

Builders Favor Continuation of FHA After End of War

Leaders of the building industry overwhelmingly favor continuation of the FHA after the war, the Architectural Forum magazine reveals in a special survey.

The survey was conducted among members of the National Association of Home Builders and the Mortgage Bankers Association of America, presidents and mortgage managers of leading life insurance companies, and selected lists of bank, realtors, savings and loan executives, lumber dealers, and building material and equipment manufacturers.

Of more than 600 leaders surveyed, only 22 wanted to see FHA abolished.

The poll revealed FHA is widely regarded as the best of the New Deal housing agencies, the Forum explained.

"Through FHA, persons of small means were able to acquire reasonably priced, well-built homes without the expense and risk of a second mortgage. By making available a steady flow of building funds, it revitalized a badly crippled industry," the publication said.

"The FHA has established minimum building standards which afforded a measure of protection to the honest builder against the unfair practices of the homebegger. Its contributions to mortgage banking were scientific appraisals, the invaluable long-term amortization loans and improved construction and inspection standards. Its insurance record is impressive."

These expressions of praise were tempered by many sharp critical comments, the magazine points out.

The most often repeated charge: too much politics, too much red tape, and too little authority in the loan offices. A major gripe was the delay in processing applications even before WPB and NHA help to jam the works. Thirty to 60 days' processing time, especially in areas without local FHA offices, has not been unusual.

Other Criticisms

"Other criticisms included evaluations always lag behind building costs; quality construction is not sufficiently encouraged; new subdivision development has been discouraged because the elaborate requirements of the land-planning division have not been taken into account in final land valuations; local officials adhere too rigidly to regulations issued by national officers unfamiliar with local conditions.

"The lending institutions are concerned chiefly with setting up brakes that would prevent repetition of the depression that followed the unbridled building in the '20s. They favor 15 to 20-year loans, larger down payments, higher interest rates and reserves for maintenance.

"Many builders and lenders are worried about FHA's attempt to control inflation by lowering valuations in the face of rising material and labor costs. Builders contend that unless these costs are passed along they will have to take up. Mortgage bankers say that because of these arbitrary valuations cash, local savings and loan associations have been able to make higher loans than FHA will approve." The survey concluded.

NAZIS FLY CAPTURED FORTS WITH YANKS

By The Associated Press

U. S. EIGHTH AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS IN BRITAIN, Aug. 21 — German airmen are flying captured American Flying Fortresses alongside our formations over France and Germany, but thus far have made no attempt to interfere with our operations, it was disclosed here today.

What the enemy's plan is has not emerged—perhaps the hope is to sneak one or more ships into the raiding squadrons and open the guns against all those about.

The American system of identifying Fortresses among each other is being changed at irregular intervals, however, and the formations fly so closely together that there is little opportunity for a successful effort to sneak into them.

So far the German-flown captives have been kept a good distance away.

Lard Outlook for Rest of Year Favorable

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 21—Saying that "the lard situation appears comfortably cared for until Sept. 30, the end of the packing year, S. A. McMurray of Schwartz and Co., predicted today that about 58 million pounds of lard would be available this month and next for domestic consumption.

"While this amount is small," he added, "it happens to be the same amount consumed during June, 1943."

Discrepancies Found In Accused Girl's Story

COVINGTON, Ky., Aug. 21 — Discrepancies have been found in the story told by Jo Ann Kiger, 16, charged with the murder of her father and brother, Sheriff Jake Williams of Boone county declared today.

Williams said the girl told him shortly after the bullet-riddled bodies of her father, Carl C. Kiger, 49, vice mayor of Covington, and her brother, Jerry, 6, were found in their beds in the family's summer home, that "she was awakened by an intruder firing a gun."

The sheriff said "examination of Jo Ann's bed disclosed that it had not been slept in."

GRANGE SETS UP 1944 FARM PROGRAM

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 21—County representatives of the Ohio State Grange were on record today as favoring maintenance of current price levels of farm products for the duration, expansion of agricultural output in 1944 and a rise in wages paid farm labor.

The policies were embodied in a program approved by county grange deputies at their semi-annual conference here. The plan will be presented for formal adoption after review by the sponsoring Grange leaders, government agencies and farm organizations, said Joseph F. Fiehler, Ohio master of the Grange.

Fiehler said he expected final approval of the program within the next few weeks. Government agencies will help implement the measure, he declared.

The convention also advocated increased taxation, liquidation of debts and promotion of saving programs as means of curbing inflation.

3 New Chemicals Hailed As Step in Cancer Cure Search

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21—Discovery of three chemicals which damage malignant cancer without doing equal harm to healthy tissues was announced yesterday in the annual report of Memorial Hospital, one of the world's leading cancer institutes.

The difference is slight, not enough to make any of the three useful for human beings. Nevertheless the discovery is of tremendous importance for it is a definite proof of the possibility that a drug can damage cancer more than other tissues.

It is possible, the report says, to synthesize all sorts of new chemicals similar to one of the three. This one is not identified, beyond the fact that it is not too toxic, that is not poisonous, to human beings.

Some of the new chemicals which can be made, the report goes on, ought to have a more powerful action, ought to damage cancer cells still more, and healthy tissues still less.

"In this way," explains the report, "we could hope to develop in time agents which would have a regular curative effect.

"The goal, a chemical cure and prevention of cancer, is perhaps the greatest to which any organized effort of medical investigation has aspired to attain."

Victory by Sea and Air

FIGHTING in the Pacific has charted our plan for victory with unmistakable clarity. It has shown that on the sea and in the air, where they are most vulnerable, the Japanese are no match for the United Nations. On the ground they are fierce, fanatical fighters who make every victory costly.

Triumphs of the United Nations and her allies in air fighting and sea fighting have exceeded our fondest hopes. Destruction of all but 10 of 225 enemy planes at Wewak with negligible losses of our own is only the most one sided of innumerable engagements in which our superiority was proved. In naval engagements we have turned in a score tremendously in our favor.

These are the losses the Japanese can least afford for despite the raw material supplies they won through early conquests, their production rate is only a fraction of that of the United Nations. The quality of their output already is deteriorating according to reports from the fighting fronts.

Occupation of Vella Lavella shows that the strategists are working on the course so clearly indicated. This spot in the jungle has so little importance of its own that the enemy left it unguarded but the presence of American forces there is a menace the Japanese cannot ignore. It is the hope of our commanding officers that our move will bring the Japanese planes and ships into action where our fighting men can get at them for it has been proved that in this kind of an engagement the odds are long on our side.

It takes land fighting, of course, and the ground forces have plenty of work to do. The way to victory, however, is clearly in the sky and on the sea and our overwhelming superiority there in skill and fighting quality shows that when we are able to concentrate superiority in numbers the end will be in sight and more cheaply than we had feared.

Who's Jittery Now?

ANOTHER vaunted "secret weapon" of the Nazis has been turned against them and, as usual, with improvements.

Hitler's war of nerves was as effective as his luftwaffe, his blitzkrieg and his U-boat in his early conquests. It was part of his strategy to shatter the morale of his victims and then attack.

The United Nations have hit German nerves some deadly blows. It generally was possible to foretell reasonably well where Hitler might move. Now the Germans know that the allies are poised for attack but it may come at a dozen places all the way from the Balkans to Norway.

Added to the devastating effect of day and night bombings on the German morale, the certainty of invasion without knowing where it will come is a strain on the enemy nerves that will show its effect when invasion hour comes.

Today's military leader must be a psychologist as well as a strategist. Gen. Eisenhower is in the position of a coach who has a good team and so many plays up his sleeves that the opposition must spread out thin all over the field. This is the dramatic moment of huddle after another first down. Next play is coming up and the enemy doesn't know the signals. That hurts.

Coffee and Good Will

THE coffee trade and statesmen are worried over the effect coffee rationing, now rescinded, may have on the coffee business and on our relations with South America.

The prosperity of several countries and especially of our very good neighbor, Brazil, which raises two-thirds of the world's coffee supply, is closely tied up with America's favorite breakfast beverage. In normal times an over supply is the bugbear of the growers. The situation is now worse.

Not only were shipments cut sharply when the U-boat menace in the Atlantic and the Caribbean was at its worst but habits of the users have undergone a change. Substitutes, coffee stretchers, reuse of grounds and other things which came into being during the period of scarcity have cut the American use of coffee.

Our purchases of this commodity were a powerful stimulus to goodwill with South America. There may be a campaign in behalf of that extra cup for breakfast. As shipping improves we may find official blessing on promotion campaigns. The cup of coffee on your table will play a part in the statesmanship needed after the war.

Frau Goering Knows Best

TWO years ago Hermann Goering told the German people that his luftwaffe was guarantee that enemy bombs would never fall on Germany. This week his wife took up her residence in neutral Switzerland. Maybe Frau Goering knows the value of her husband's promises as well as the people of Hamburg now know them.

During the American Revolution, the state of West Virginia supplied Gen. Washington with more soldiers than any other state.

The original forest area of the United States is estimated at 820,000,000 acres, or nearly half the land area of the nation.

Today and Tomorrow

Nation Still Unprepared To Readjust Our Economic Foreign Policy.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

IF WE are to make a peace and a peace properly after this war we shall have to learn to understand as the economic [illegible] century from what it was in the nineteenth century.

That is not easy. It is not even easy to see what in fact an economic foreign policy is, and how you go about framing one.

It is perfectly safe to warn the reader that the subject is dull even though it is vitally important.

There is an obvious reason why economic foreign policy is more or less a closed book to Americans of our generation. It was that for fifty years—from about 1870 to 1920—this country was in the unique position of not needing to think about economic foreign policy.

For it was in the early 1870's that there came to an end American dependence upon the imports of foreign manufacture and upon foreign capital to finance the imports. During the first eighty years of our national existence our net indebtedness to foreign countries rose from $9,000,000 in 1795 to $1,500,000,000 in 1860. On the average during this period the money we received for our exports was only from 80 to 85 per cent of the money we had to pay out for our imports. Before the Civil War the difference was covered by our borrowing money in Europe, and beginning in the 1850's in part by gold mined in California.

Balance Reached.

But by the middle 1870's, as Miss Cleona Lewis shows us in her study for the Brookings Institution, our foreign accounts had come into balance except by what we owed on the earlier debts. The income from our exports and from the services which we performed for foreigners were more than sufficient to pay for our imports, for the expenditures of American tourists, and for the remittances of immigrants to their relatives in Europe. But we still did not have enough income from abroad to pay the interest and the dividends owed to foreigners. So from 1874 to 1897 we continued to borrow abroad, and during this period our net foreign indebtedness, not counting the defaults and repudiations on state and railway debts, increased by some $1,300,000,000 net. This raised our net indebtedness to $2,710,000,000.

From 1898 to 1914—that is to say from the Spanish war to the first World war—the position which we had held throughout our previous history began to change radically. Though we continued to borrow, we began to invest abroad. Between 1897 and 1914 our foreign investments multiplied five times. Our foreign borrowing doubled. As a result, by the year 1908 we turned the corner, and our net liabilities in 1914, when war broke out, were slightly less than they were in 1908. This is important. For it shows that we were destined, even without the effects of war, to cease to be a debtor nation.

Become Creditors.

But the war which began in 1914 made sudden and dramatic this change, which would otherwise have been slow and gradual. At the outset of the first World war we were net debtors to the amount of some $3,700,000,000. Five years later, we had not only paid off all this debt but had become, if we include the war debts, net creditors to the amount of $12,562,000,000. If we exclude the war debts, we were still creditors to the amount of some $3,000,000,000.

This long and, I suppose, rather dry history, is very important to us. For it shows that until 1870 we had to think about economic foreign relations because we were dependent upon foreign lending. It shows that after 1870 and until the first World war we really did not have to think seriously about economic foreign relations because we had only to borrow relatively small sums to service what had become, in relation to our growing wealth, a rather small foreign debt.

Now virtually all the adults who voted and all the men who held public office in the '20s were educated before 1914—in a period when we had no need to think seriously about economic foreign relations. Even today, thirty years later, the most influential leaders of opinion in both parties, in congress, in the administration, in the farm bloc, in organized labor, in corporate business, and in journalism are men who grew up in the days when the country did not need an economic foreign policy.

We can understand, therefore, why this country was caught unprepared in 1920, and is still unprepared, to readjust our economic policy to the momentous fact that we have ceased to be a debtor and have become a great creditor nation.

Built To Dish It Out

Reprinted from "Ships."

THE destroyer escort is a ship that is America's ringing answer to the axis submarine challenge.

How far and how fast the DE can go, how hard it can hit, the Navy isn't saying. As more and more of them go into service, the axis knows, however. They discovered these interesting facts the hard way.

The destroyer escort is a ship that was designed by naval architects who have long served our shipbuilding industry and the U. S. Navy. It was shrewdly planned and skillfully designed to fill the gap between light patrol craft and standard destroyers.

The DE is being steadily improved but the process of improvement does not interrupt the steady and cheering flow of these ships from the dozen or more privately operated shipyards where they are being produced. They long since passed the experimental stage.

We needed an escort fighting ship that had certain special virtues. It had to pack a wallop, be nimble and maneuverable, fast enough to get places in a hurry—and able to dish out death and destruction to axis subs and airplanes. Given such a craft, certain advantages would be gained; our ever-increasing convoys of troop transports and fighting equipment would have an additional guarantee of safe arrival. The second advantage is of primary importance — plenty of ships answering these specifications would release many destroyers for actual combat service in zones where they are needed.

THE secret of the great and impressive production record now being made on destroyer escorts is due to the fact that for the first time in naval history, ships of substantial tonnage and of almost identical pattern are being built in large numbers. This has enabled shipyards to take advantage of unit prefabrication—a factor that guarantees fast construction.

Officially, the destroyer escort is approximately 300 feet in length, 36 feet as to beam. She looks competent and she is. Her tonnage is about the same as a light destroyer of World War I.

Her ordnance is designed to make the DE the hardest hitting fighting ship of her size afloat. She carries torpedo tubes, depth charges, heavy caliber machine guns and her multipurpose main battery can throw destructive shells fast and straight at enemy subs or planes. In addition there are other features of the ordnance on the DE calculated to make the enemy most unhappy.

In the water she is sleek and sinister in appearance. Her speed is not revealed. But, it is ample for a convoy escort ship — substantially faster than the transport and cargo ships it must guard, speedy enough to run down the fastest enemy sub ever made.

Destroyer escorts have their work cut out for them. The service on which they will be engaged is important. Their crews — it takes about 200 men to a ship—are carefully trained for months. The ships are built by specialists—and run by men who are also specialists. There is the same teamwork and coordination in the operation of a DE as there was in its construction. Each man knows his own job and does it superlatively.

When the DE puts to sea, she is able to dish it out. She never avoids combat. Like the destroyer she carries only light armor. Her job is to give—not take. She will be an elusive target from the air—on or under the sea. She will see the convoys safely to their destination and back again.

Hundreds of persons gathered along the route of the C., D. & M. interurban line to bid farewell to an electrical transportation system that served north central Ohio for 31 years. The line made its official exit at 10:45 when the last car was placed in the barns at Delaware. V. E. Bush, motorman, and W. M. Lawson, conductor, were in charge of the car, but Lawson stepped aside on the final run to permit C. C. Moyer of Delaware, superintendent of the railway division of the C., D. & M. to officiate as acting conductor. Mr. Moyer brought the first car over the line to Marion in 1893.

Miss Marjory Jean Shrock of 388 Pearl street entertained with a theater party and tea in honor of her houseguest, Miss Hilda Van Deinse of Orlando, Fla. Guests were Miss Van Deinse, Miss Jean Rice of Detroit, Miss Mary Ernestine Smith, Miss Betty Lusch, Miss Joan Boyd, Miss Lucille Ballinger, Miss Carroll Heffelfinger, Miss Clara Jane Gibson, Miss Jane Metz, Miss Mildred Zachman, Miss Miriam Pauling and Miss Marjorie Moore.

The Epworth Seniors won the Sunday School No. 2 softball league championship by defeating the First Reformed church team, 6-2, in a game played at Lincoln park. TWENTY YEARS AGO.

It was Tuesday, Aug. 21, 1923.

Army mail planes innaugurated a coast-to-coast air mail service when C. Eugene Johnson, federal airplane pilot, left Hazelhurst field at Mineola, N. Y., on the first lap of a trans-continental relay race. The object was to establish a 28-hour mail service between New York City and San Francisco.

The condition of Mrs. T. A. Cooper of Bucyrus, who had been injured in an automobile accident the preceding Saturday was reported improved.

Miss Emma R. Berndt, 42, a teacher in the Marion public schools for more than 20 years, died in the Marion City hospital. She had been principal of the Davids street school seven years.

A survey just completed by the United States department of labor showed that there was a scarcity of both skilled and unskilled labor in Marion. This was unusual, as at this time of the year industry ordinarily slowed down and workers were laid off.

"Amelicans Clazy"

CAMP WHITE, ORE.—It would tend to get monotonous hearing "jing schong qualese sun son tey" every day, especially if you couldn't translate it.

At least that's the way barracks mates of Pvt. Jay Jon, Chinese, at Camp White, felt about the whole thing. In vain attempts to get a translation of Jon's constant singsong his buddies subjected him to a daily hazing ritual, including dumping him head first in a GI can, nailing his shoes to the barracks floor, and a morning and evening hot-foot.

The soldiers know what it means now, but Jon didn't talk. It remained for another Chinese soldier to reveal that the mysterious words mean 'Amelicans velly clazy pleople."

NO TIME FOR SIESTA

U. S. Maps Separate Air Force

Plans in Making, but May Wait War's End.

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—The blueprint for a separate air force has been drawn.

I have this information from sources which there is no reason to doubt. While these sources would not go into details, it is hinted that the blueprint might not lead immediately (perhaps not even until after World war II) to a unified department of national defense with coequal chiefs of staff for the Army, air and sea forces, but that it would elevate the air force chief to equal status with the Army chief of staff and commander in chief of the United States fleet.

The reasons given for the delay thus far in establishing a separate air force are:

(1) That until comparatively recent months, the United States air force didn't have the experience, personnel, or even equipment to assume its responsibilities as the third great independent cog in our war machine and that the powers that be wouldn't permit its formation until it could stand on its own feet.

(2) That the change wouldn't be made (and may not yet) until it's positive that it will in no way disrupt the effectiveness with which the air forces have been operating.

(3) That for psychological reasons and the morale of all services involved, it has been thought best not to make the change while civilian controversy rages over its potential faults and benefits. (And there have been very few lulls in this critical storm.)

IT HAS been said with some amusement, in Army circles at least, that while these controversies have been blowing over the land, the Army actually has been inching closer to the separate air force idea until now, in effect, it already fits the blueprint.

Gen. Henry H. Arnold, commanding general of the Army air forces, although still technically under the command of General George C. Marshall, chief of staff, is a full member of the combined chiefs of staff of United States and Great Britain. The other U. S. members of this vital war board are General Marshall, Admiral Ernest J. King and Admiral William D. Leahy.

Arnold, being a full general, outranks both commanding officers of the other two Army commands—ground forces and special services.

In addition, the U. S. air forces based in the Mediterranean and in Great Britain already have adopted the independent Royal Air Forces plan for establishing tactical air force commands, which bomb enemy war installations far behind the fighting lines.

The greatest resistance to a separate air force has come from the Pacific, it is said, where Navy brass hats have been unbending in their opposition to any change in the present set-up.

Such resistance, even from minority groups, has been known before to result in blueprints being allowed to gather dust here until they become obsolete. It might happen in this case yet.

Cash for Salutes

By The Associated Press

LOGAN, W. Va.—A new and popular type of "bill collecting" has found a willing disciple in Sgt. Ohley Bennet of Logan, now stationed with the Ferry command at Romulus Army Air Field, Detroit. Because he is invariably the first enlisted man a newly commissioned officer salutes, Bennet has picked up a neat nest egg of 53 one-dollar bills, but because they're autographed he hesitates to spend them for sentimental reasons. Army tradition dictates that every new officer must present a buck to the first enlisted man who salutes him. At Romulus field, that is always Bennet because he processes the oathes of office. If no better solution presents itself, Bennet proposes to keep accumulating bills and remembering the doners after the war with some sort of gift.

American Legion

War Veterans Would Have Power If They Ever Unite In One Big National Organization.

By DAMON RUNYON

MOST members of the American Legion think it a certainty that when the veterans of this war will form their own organization, probably along the lines of the Legion, despite the fact that the Legion has opened their doors to the young men who already admitted a large number.

But the Legionnaires think that many of the young fellows will have ideas when they get back home, they will want to put in their own organization. Their train of thought will run parallel to the functions of an organization. Veterans of World war II may differ somewhat from that of the oldies.

Some of the politically-wise Legionnaires think that even if the veterans of this war are not generally disposed toward a new organization, the politicians would engineer a new one because of the possible political potentialities of such an aggregation of former servicemen.

The American Legion itself, in theory at least, keeps out of politics, though it has many members who deal in little else but politics. Legion. I believe that no man in public life can hold office in the organization. There is a rather subtle rule that has kept politics out of the Legion, prohibits the naming of a candidate for a living person.

AS you know, the yen for public office is so great in this country that this rule probably many a post would be filled by living citizens of no particular fame who crave a high honor. But I think that even the Legionnaires will admit that the fact a candidate is a fellow veteran is no knock to him among his comrades when they go to the polls.

The American Legion now has a membership of 1,138,000 from the 4,000,000 men who served for World war I. Its auxiliaries made up of wives and blood relatives number 540,000 more. Veterans of Foreign Wars, an organization of veterans of all wars who saw foreign service, has a membership strength of perhaps 1,000,000. I do not have the exact muster.

The Disabled American Veterans, the veterans association and various other organizations of former servicemen that are included in the Legion or V. F. W. or the numerous divisional organizations from the war I may be safely estimated as well into six figures.

PROBABLY over 10,000,000 men will have been in the service before this war ends. If all the veterans now organized and all coming out of this war pooled their strength in one set-up you can readily see that they would constitute the most powerful single agency for any purpose this nation has ever known. And if the purpose should suddeny become clear you can see that the veterans would easily hold the balance of power.

I am not saying that this may happen. I am only telling you what many legionnaires and the politicians fear. I once read a statement in a newspaper to the effect that anyone who suggested that the veterans might run the country after the war was proposing fascism and that has always puzzled me about that statement. I see why the same proposal as applied to the Republican or Democratic party is not also fascism.

SUPPOSE all the war veterans form their own political party under the same fundamental democratic principles professed by the old parties but with broader purpose and invited all non-veterans to join them if they desired, would that be fascism? I think not. But I can see why politicians would not like the very idea appear something.

They need not worry. After the war there will be Republicans or Democrats, as usual, there will be no new party. The veterans back from war will be too doggoned busy trying to work out a bare living to think of politics.

Cash Crop in Hills

BROKEN VALLEY, Tenn.—The hill-and rural Grainger County, Tenn., have found another cash crop and are making the most of it.

Turning out more than 2,000 strong—men and women, mothers with babies in arms and just out of swaddling clothes and older children have taken to the field and ravines to pick the native blackberry.

Within three weeks these natives will have netted wards of 250,000 pounds of the wild fruit worth $20,000!

Behind the movement, as in the case of many innovations, lies a story. John Stoner, the story himself. The Grainger County farm leader instilled the idea of family berry picking and found a ready market for the crop.

The families, with their crops already contracted, settled on the patches like locusts on a wheat field. Under an unwritten mountain law they picked the berries wherever they found them, regardless of property lines.

The 4-H Club of course comes in for a share of the profit. The market paid eight cents a pound and the 4-H Club cut was one cent a pound. With this money, the 4-H Club hopes to build a summer camp on TVA's Chero-Ola.

The $20,000 crop by the Grainger County folk represents one-third of all the taxes paid in the county for a year.

SERIES OF THEFTS REPORTED TO POLICE

Property Valued at $85 and $100 in Cash Taken.

A wave of minor thefts swept the city yesterday with four burglaries being reported to city police. Jewelry and other articles valued at over $85 and between $90 and $100 in cash was reported to be the total loot of the thieves.

The largest of the four thefts was reported by Lloyd Pfahler of Mansfield. He told police his auto parked on West Center street was entered between 1:30 p. m. and 2 p. m. yesterday and between $90 and $100 in cash and several important items were removed. He said he was making a purchase in a store at the time of the theft.

Police believe the same thief, or thieves was responsible for two other thefts, at least. These were reported by Mrs. Hattie Bell and Warren Ruble, both of whom live at 327 South Main street. Mrs. Bell listed the following items as being stolen from her bedroom yesterday afternoon: a black summer coat, a yellow gold necklace, and a silver ring. She placed the total value at $25.

Mr. Ruble told police that someone had entered his bedroom at the same address between 12 noon and 5 p. m. yesterday and stole a 17-jewel wrist watch valued at $50.

Herman Carr of the Lincoln hotel reported the fourth theft, which was the largest of the four in number of items reported stolen and the smallest in the value of the stolen goods. He said someone entered his hotel room yesterday and took the following articles, valued at about $8: a white shirt, neck tie, several colored shirts, several safety razor blades, and an alarm clock.

Dr. William Lyon Phelps Dies

By The Associated Press

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 21—Dr. William Lyon Phelps, 78, professor-emeritus of English at Yale university, author, lecturer and man of letters, died early today.

In ill health since June 21 when he suffered a stroke, Phelps had appeared to be on the road to recovery but early in the week suffered a relapse.

Known as Yale's unofficial ambassador-at-large — and recognized as perennial "most popular" member of the faculty—Phelps retired in 1933 at the age of 68.

Born in New Haven, Jan. 2, 1865, Phelps entered Yale in 1883, was editor of the Yale Literary magazine in his junior year and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa in his senior year. He joined the Yale faculty in 1892, after having taught one year at Harvard.

Funeral services will be Monday at 2:30 p. m. in Yale's Battell hall, with Rev. Sidney Lovett, university chaplain, officiating. Burial will be in Grove Street cemetery, close by several university buildings.

Evangelistic Bible Conference Closes

In the closing session of the Evangelistic Bible conference in Central Junior High school auditorium last night Dr. J. J. Van Gorder of Cleveland, Tenn., conference teacher, spoke on "Born from Above."

Illustrating his message by use of a large chart, he based his thoughts on the words of Christ to Nocodemus, the Jewish ruler, "Ye must be born again."

Out-of-town delegations attended the service. Special music was presented by the Gospel Fellowship trio consisting of Rev. Marvin Lewis, Howard Orr and Mrs. Harold Smith. Mr. Orr sang a solo and testimonies of Christian faith were given by members of the Young People's Fellowship club, the group sponsoring the six-day conference which opened Sunday.

Rubber Footwear Ration Regulations Relaxed

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21—Rationing regulations on certain types of rubber boots and footwear were relaxed today by the office of price administration, due to increased allotments of the product by the war production board.

Under the new rules employers can obtain rubber footwear for their employes, and consumers desiring below-the-knee rubber boots are eligible for ration certificates needed to obtain them. Also, assorted types of rubber boots and shoes needed by farmers are released from rationing, provided the dealer involved files an inventory of such stock with his OPA office.

Naturally large numbers of factory workers have been killed in the process. While there can be no joy in the removal of these people yet we should be realistic enough to recognize that actually their deaths help the Allied cause. Skilled workers are difficult to replace in industry.

The amount of destruction accomplished by a mission of several hundred bombers is colossal. The British figure on devastating about half an acre per bomber on every raid. Each formation of 84 American bombers can be expected to account for 16 acres.

KISKA

W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the Pacific fleet.

Expensive Jap Defeat

Kiska's fall could rate as one of Japan's more expensive defeats, for in addition to establishing a large garrison on the island, the Japanese had poured supplies in for months before the blockade became sufficiently effective so that the only materials received were those smuggled by submarines.

It was costly, also, in ship losses, for 29 warships and 30 non-combatant vessels were sunk, probably sunk or damaged in the Aleutians.

Of the combatant ships put out of action, seven destroyers were sunk, three probably sunk, and five damaged. Seven cruisers were damaged, one submarine probably was lost and three were damaged. Two other warships undesignated by type were sent to the bottom and one was damaged.

The non-combatant ship losses included one transport sunk, one probably sunk and four damaged. Five cargo and supply ships sunk, three probably sunk and 13 damaged, and three miscellaneous vessels damaged.

North American Area Now Free of Japs

By The Associated Press

QUEBEC, Aug. 21—A joint statement by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King of Canada issued here today said the occupation of Kiska "frees the last vestige of North American territory of Japanese forces."

Stephen Early, the President's secretary, said in releasing the statement simultaneously with issuance of the U. S. Navy communique in Washington that Mr. Roosevelt had asked him to announce this "for me personally."

The statement was given to reporters here by Early, Capt. Leland P. Lovette, chief of Navy public relations; and Maj. Gen. Alexander Surles, Army public relations chief. Early said:

"The President asked me to say to you that he is very happy to be in Quebec with Prime Minister MacKenzie King at the time it is possible to announce the occupation of Kiska by the joint United States and Canadian forces.

"He is especially delighted and gratified that the occupation forces included the well-equipped and splendidly trained Canadian units."

GOLF COURSES TO BE BUSY PLACES SUNDAY

Tourney Play Under Way at Both Links.

Tomorrow promises to be a busy day for both the Country club and Marion-Del golf courses as final preparations for the fifth annual county golf tournament and traditional club tourneys will be worked out. Additional matches of other golfing events are also expected to be completed by the semi-mid deadlines.

Things will especially be buzzing at Country club. Final matches in all three flights of the vice president's handicap tournament are scheduled to be played and drawings for two annual club tourneys, the club championship and the President's handicap trophy, will be made.

Match play for the Country club championship and the president's tourney will get under way next week, Bill Schimmel, Country club games chairman, said today.

Mar-O-Del public linksmen are expected to finish many of the third round matches in the Mar-O-Del handicap tourney. Thirteen golfers survived second round play in the handicap event.

Many golfers at both layouts are expected to post qualifying scores for the county tournament tomorrow which is entry and qualifying deadline.

Tokyo Raid Officer Missing in Action

Greening then a captain was credited with devising the 20-cent bombsight used in the attack on Tokyo and other Japanese cities. The improvised sight was used so there would be no chance that secret American bombsights might fall into enemy hands.

Planes, Troops Stop Jap Advance in Burma

By The Associated Press

NEW DELHI, Aug. 21—A recent Japanese seizure of the initiative aground in northern Burma was implied today in a U. S. Tenth Air Force communique which said two days of intense operations by bomb-carrying Warhawks in support of allied troops were believed to have halted all Japanese advances in that area.

"Advanced bases of the enemy were repeatedly bombed and strafed," the bulletin said, adding that as a result "it is believed that all forward movement was halted."

All of the American planes and their pilots returned safely.

With startling suddenness a [illegible] portune moment in the met[illegible] worth an unexpected 8 to 7 v[illegible] game of the 1943 Little World Series at [illegible] last night.

With one out in the last seventh, [illegible] Coxie Weiss, noted for his [illegible] grooved pitch perfectly for a [illegible] beyond the reach of the [illegible] Coca-Cola fielder. This one-bagger drove in Evans and Lasley, occupants of third and second respectively, with the two game-clinching runs. Coke was leading 7 to 6 before Virden's exceedingly timely safely.

Young Bob apparently reserved most of his batting strength until his last trip when it was needed the most for a Methodist win. The first time up, Virden walked, flied out to center fielder Somerlot the second time and popped to short fielder Weber his third try.

Lively Seventh

Coke had scored one run in their half of the seventh to advance into a 7 to 5 lead going into the Epworth 50 per cent of the last frame. Dick Mulvaine, erstwhile Harding High school cage and diamond star, who was acquired by John Clark for the Series, opened the last of the seventh with a single. Then Tom Moran, member of the St. Mary team during the regular Sunday School season, grounded to third baseman Wilcox of Coke who snared Mulvaine at second by an eyelash. Moran, safe on a fielder's choice then proceeded to steal second and third under the nose of catcher Reichardt of Coke. He came home shortly thereafter on a double by Merle Lashey, right fielder for the Methodists. Evans, up before Lashey, had walked and raced to third on Merle's two-bagger. Then came Virden's hit which supplied the already exciting contest with a story-book finish.

Epworth, champion of the Sunday School league, will meet Universal Cooler, Industrial loop flagwinner, in the second Series tilt Monday night at Lincoln park. The Cokes, who won the two-team Commercial league race, will get a rest until Wednesday, when they play the loser of Monday night's game in a contest which will eliminate one of the Series' contestants.

Two Hit Loss

Although Weiss was tagged for only two hits by Epworth batters he nevertheless was charged with the loss. Tony Caprino started for the beverage team and was responsible for all four Methodist tallies marked up in the first inning. Coxie relieved him in the last of the first.

Weiss, normally cool and collected when pitching, was not himself last night as three of his pitches went wild at the most crucial times. Two of the awry heaves came in the first. They gave two Epworth runners unimpeded access to home base. The other wild Weiss toss came in the last of the third and also was responsible for an Epworth run when Smart tallied from third.

Roy Everly, fast but wild flinger, was on the mound for the Methodists. He allowed 13 hits and walked nine men but still hung on to be credited with the triumph.

After Epworth had scored four in the first on two singles and a double and the aforementioned Weiss wild pitches, Coke tallied three in the first of the second to knot the score at 4-all. The runs were made by Weber, Reichardt and Weiss. The Cokes blasted out three hits in this inning.

Sidelights On "Series" Opener

Bob Virden, who is now being called Frank Merriwell by Epworth followers, was a member of the Harding High school baseball team of last spring. He will be a senior at Harding this coming school year. Although his hitting prowess is the principal topic of conversation among local softball enthusiasts, Virden still commands more respect from opposing players when he is on the mound for John Clark, et al. During the regular Sunday School league season, young Bob won eight games and was defeated once.

• • •

Bob Scott, who was stationed at first base for Epworth last night, pulled the proverbial boner in one instance but compensated for that mental mistake by turning in a dandy fielding play. Bob, in an attempt to bunt in the last of the third, blooped a popper coincidental with the first base line which catcher Reichardt of Coca-Cola dropped. Bob, thinking the bunt went foul, lingered around home plate and seconds later was thrown out by First Baseman Bob Cocherl who chased the ball into foul territory. However, Scott, Commercial Steel manager during the regular season, dashed in on a bunt off the bat of Weber in the fourth and quickly threw out Wilcox racing for home.

• • •

Coxie Weiss, losing moundsman last night, came in too late to start the game for Coca-Cola but with a little warm-up along the sidelines, came in for the faltering Caprino. It seems as if Coxie has been putting in much more than his quota of time on the farm.

• • •

John Clark was a happy man after last night's game for he saw in the Epworth win a possible chance that another team piloted by him would cop the city crown.

Tourney Deadline Sunday

Golfers have until tomorrow midnight to enter and qualify for the fifth annual Marion county golf tournament. Opening match play at the Mar-O-Del course will start a week from tomorrow, Harold Henry, county golf chairman, stated today. This postponement in the first round opening will give tourney entrants a week to shoot their practice round, which is included in the $2.50 entry fee. Practice rounds, as well as qualifying scores, may be posted at either the Country club or Mar-O-Del courses.

Entry tickets may be purchased at either course, at the Y. M. C. A. or from any member of the Y's Men's Service club, sponsor of this year's tournament. Henry estimated that between 12 and 15 qualifying marks had been turned in up to yesterday. He added, however, many more golfers are needed for a successful tourney this year. First round pairings will be drawn next week.

The following entry blank may be filled out and filed at either course or at the Y. M. C. A.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21 — As the baseball season turns the August corner and rolls into the final month, owners, managers, coaches and players are breathing a lot easier than they did earlier this year.

Business hasn't been too tough. The war didn't take too many of the game's stars. The sport escaped the non-deferrable draft jobs list, and things are looking up for next year.

It wasn't so many moons ago that pessimists were wailing like banshees that baseball would never last until Labor Day. They moaned that the baseball fan wouldn't be interested in the quality of the game this year; that he would be too busy in war jobs, or victory gardens; or that he would prefer to go out to see the geegees gallop.

As it turned out, it was a lot of idle chatter. There was a slight decline in attendance early in the season, but that was due more to the weather than anything else. Some of the teams will lose money, to be sure, but try to name a year when one or more clubs didn't use red ink in their books.

As a matter of fact, the baseball fans have been coming back in such droves—if they were really missing earlier in the season—that attendance records in several cities are even surpassing last years figures. The Browns, Athletics and Phillies have been drawing better than they have for years.

• • •

May Train in South

With their problems for this year fairly well settled, outside of the world series—and the Yankees and Cardinals will take care of that—baseball owners are already making plans for next year. These plans include a return to southern training camps!

If you talked to a baseball team owner a few months ago about going back down south to train, he would have slipped silently away with a faint sh-h-h on his lips. They were given to understand that it was against the government's wishes, and they didn't want to do anything that would rile Uncle Sam.

Along around time for the All-Star game, word got about that the government had never said that the majors couldn't train in Florida last spring. Then the magnates woke up to the fact that it wasn't any ODT order that had deprived the teams of a trip south and loss of revenue, but a voluntary suggestion by Judge Landis.

The Office of Defense Transportation simply asked that baseball reduce its transportation and cut out some of the exhibition games. It was then that the high commissioner solemnly made his patriotic gesture and said that there would be no spring training south of the Potomac or the Ohio in 1943.

Will Save Baseball

Recently the suggestion was made to Connie Mack that the big league teams approach the Army and Navy to see if arrangements could be made to go back south and have each team train at a service base.

Connie jumped into action immediately. "It's the best idea I've heard in a long time," enthused the venerable A's leader. "It's the salvation for baseball next year! I'm going to take it up with the directors at their next meeting."

In the meantime, Al Lang, the St. Petersburg tub thumper, began sounding out opinion among baseball men and government figures. And Lang has been given to understand by a government official that if baseball makes application to Washington through proper channels it will be given a hearing on the matter of training and the transportation problems involved.

Says Lang: "I think that if baseball presents its case in Washington with emphasis on the recreational value that big league teams training in Florida or other southern sections would have on the soldiers in military camps its request will be granted."

Yes sir, things are looking up for baseball next year. The next move is up to Judge Landis.

CARDS BEAT PHILS; YANKS CONQUER CLEVELAND, 10 TO 5

Cincinnati Loses, 3 to 2, in 12 Inning Game; Dodgers Win from Cubs.

By The Associated Press

With the St. Louis Cardinals and New York Yankees leading it is little to be said about the major league pennant races. Baseball men already are turning to discussing the World Series and wondering where Mort Cooper will fit into Billy Southworth's strategy.

The ace of the world champions has failed four times against American league hitters—twice in the All-Star games and twice in last year's World Series.

The skipper of the Redbirds indicated last night that maybe he, too, had decided Cooper is not invincible.

The big righthander worked for the Cardinals against the Phillies and pitched five-hit ball that took him into the ninth inning leading 5-1. But when the Phillies loaded the bases against him with one out, Southworth quickly called in Howie Krist to relieve Cooper. Krist made the next two batters pop up and saved Cooper's 17th victory.

Yanks Beat Tribe

The Yankees, who have not yet been able to draw as far ahead of the American league as the Cardinals have done in the senior circuit, looked like pennant winners in conquering the Cleveland Indians 10-5 with a 14-hit attack. The Tribe was shoved back into fourth place.

The Washington Senators, however, trounced the Chicago White Sox by the same score, 10-5, in a night game to maintain their distance behind the Yanks.

In the only other American league game Detroit nosed out the Boston Red Sox 1 to 0 on a single by Rudy York in the ninth inning. Both Frank (Stubby) Overmire and Joe Dobson pitched five-hit ball.

Truett (Rip) Sewell, who has become famous for his "parachute pitch," tumbled to defeat as the Pittsburgh Pirates dropped two games to the New York Giants 3-2 and 7-4. Sewell's setback resulted from Mel Ott's 17th home run with one on in the sixth inning and made his record 18 victories and five defeats to date.

Reds Edged

The second-place Cincinnati Reds were edged 3-2 in 12 innings at Boston when Whitey Qietelmann singled home a run to end a pitching battle between Al Javery and Johnny Vander Meer.

Whitlow Wyatt pitched six-hit ball as the Brooklyn Dodgers curbed the Chicago Cubs 6-3.

TRAINING IN CO. H TO BE SPEEDED UP

Plans Formulated at State Guard Meeting.

A training program designed to keep the Ohio State Guard training up to par was the purpose of the meeting last night in the Armory at Marysville, according to a report today by Capt. Carl Ebert. All of the battalion officers were present including the non-commissioned officer's staff.

New plans and a condensed schedule will be adopted in an effort to intensify the speed of training. Since new members are constantly being recruited into the unit and others are leaving periodically for the service, it is necessary to give the same amount of training in a shorter length of time.

The plans discussed last night are designed basically to simplify the methods of training now employed.

Capt. Ebert requested all non-commissioned officers and specialists of Co. H to attend school Monday night at the Armory when the new methods and formations will be discussed.

When Grant discovers that her ... organization is giving a big ... ball to raise part of the ... they need, he gets a bright ... By moving some of his ... equipment to the hall ... running games on the side, he ... raise a large sum in a few ... The relief group think, of course, that they are going to get the profits, but Grant has other ideas. Miss Day turns the scheme down cold and Grant has to put on an act and apply a little ro- ... before she consents.

Repentant, Cary Grant decides to run the thing on the level, but his pals don't see it that way. The result is a stirring climax that brings matters to a surprise conclusion punctuated with gun-play.

"White Savage" a technicolor film starring Maria Montez and Jon Hall, will be shown starting Thursday and continuing through Saturday.

A South Seas island paradise is the locale of the story, a romantic tale dealing with the plight of an amorous shark hunter who loves the fascinating native princess. Miss Montez appears as the princess while Hall portrays the fisherman. Sabu is seen in the role of the latter's assistant.

Marion Shows Skelton Film

"Whistling in Dixie" and "The Leopard Man" Opens Week's Bill.

"Whistling In Dixie" starring Red Skelton and Ann Rutherford, and "The Leopard Man," with Dennis O'Keefe and Margo, will start at the Marion theater with a midnight show Saturday and continue through Monday.

What happens when a super-sleuth of the airways meets real-life crooks of everyday life is the theme of "Whistling in Dixie." Red Skelton is starred as the radio detective who encounters real crime with results which provide plenty of comedy in the picture.

Murders seemingly done by a beast of the jungle, and the more terrifying because they take place in a safe and sleepy little resort town in New Mexico, form the basis of "The Leopard Man."

"Eyes in the Night," with Edward Arnold and Ann Harding, and "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," starring Fay Bainter and Hugh Herbert, will be shown Tuesday and Wednesday.

The exploits of a blind detective, played by Edward Arnold, and his brilliant Seeing Eye dog as they track down espionage agents is the theme of the unusual drama, "Eyes in the Night."

"Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" is the story of the tumble-down shantytown on the wrong side of the tracks and of the lovable people who live there. Fay Bainter is cast in the role of the eternally cheerful Mrs. Wiggs.

"Red River Robin Hood," starring Tim Holt, and "Spy Train," with Richard Travis, will start Thursday and continue through Saturday.

The locale for the first picture on this double bill is the cattle country of the far west. Tim Holt is filmed as a young rancher who leads a fight against a land swindler, who is seeking to dispossess him and his neighbors from their lands through a supposed Spanish grant.

"Spy Train" is the story of an exciting journey aboard a passenger express in wartime. Richard Travis, who is cast as a newspaper writer, has the leading role in this story of espionage.

"Give Out Sisters" starring the Andrews Sisters and "The Navy Comes Thru" starring Pat O'Brien and George Murphy will be shown at the State theater Sunday and Monday.

The first picture on this double feature bill deals with the troubles of a jive-minded girl who is determined to dance publicly despite the objections of her three elderly aunts. Dan Dailey Jr. has the role of an exasperated orchestra leader.

"The Navy Comes Thru" tells the story of a young officer who courts death in the powder magazine of a flaming ship to clear his name of a false charge of neglect of duty.

"Man Made Monster" starring Frank Albertson and Lon Chaney Jr. and "Juke Box Jenny" with Harriet Hilliard and Ken Murray will be shown Tuesday and Wednesday.

New Rule on Lost Rationing Books

Local war price and rationing boards were authorized today to waive prescribed waiting periods in handling applications for replacements of lost or stolen food ration books where necessary to avoid "extreme hardship" upon individuals acting in good faith.

Today's action by OPA permits boards, in instances where further investigation of the question of loss or theft of a food ration book appears to be desirable, and where extreme hardship would result from delay, to issue certificates or other ration evidence with which an applicant may obtain rationed foods pending the investigation.

Present regulations provide a minimum ten-day waiting period where hardship can not be shown. Boards must decide on applications for lost or stolen food ration books not later than 30 days after the application date except that a board may withhold replacement for 60 days where negligence was a contributing factor.

Bomber's Moon Playing at Ohio

Story of Yank Flier and Russian Woman Army Doctor Is Theme.

Now playing at the Ohio theater and continuing through Monday is "Bomber's Moon" starring Annabella and George Montgomery.

A Yank flyer who pilots an American bomber over Germany and a young woman doctor serving in the Red Army medical corps are the central characters in this story.

Leading a bomber mission over Germany, George's plane is shot down, but not before he has seen his young brother, the bombardier, machine-gunned to death as he parachutes to earth.

In a Nazi internment camp, George meets Annabella, a captured Red Army doctor who ministers to the prisoners. During an air raid, the two manage separate escapes and meet outside the prison. They begin their journey across Germany to Holland, from where they hope to escape to England.

The two find themselves constantly in danger as they attempt to outwit the Gestapo. Although death constantly stares them in the face the two find that despite their apparent hopeless situation they have fallen in love. The climax of the film, in which they both obtain their revenge, is an exciting one.

Another special "March of Time" is shown on the same bill with "Bomber's Moon." This feature, "—And Then Japan" pictures the sons of the far Pacific and what they intend to do. After opening with Japanese propaganda, the action swings into the possible ways of beating Japan, a country which will not surrender.

"My Friend Flicka" starring Roddy McDowall, Rita Johnson and Preston Foster returns for three days starting Tuesday. This new western story filmed in technicolor is of a rancher, his wife and his sons. The younger boy is played by Roddy McDowall and the theme of the film is woven around the intense love that he has for a horse.

"Heaven Can Wait" starring Don Ameche and Gene Tierney will start Friday and continue through Thursday.

This picture, filmed in technicolor, is a frivolous comedy of the naughty nineties. Don Ameche and Gene Tierney are cast as a ...sion of a staid New York household and the fair lady whom he woos.

Business or Labor Influence in Government To Be Issue

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., Aug. 21—One of the issues which will likely be debated at length between now and the 1944 election is how much relative influence big business and labor unions should have with the government.

Vice President Wallace raised the issue in his recent Detroit speech in which he said that some of the administration's foes want to go back to the good old days of Americanism "when Washington was only a way station in the suburbs of Wall Street." It is inevitable that equally extreme partisans in the Republican party will counter with the charge that the New Deal is now being dominated by labor unions.

What Public Thinks

When the bitter-enders of both parties start the fireworks over this issue of the influence of big business versus labor unions in relation to government, where will the sympathies of the public lie?

While the average American believes the government should not be controlled by any one group, nevertheless if he had to choose he would prefer to see business have more control over government than labor unions.

That is the concensus in a national survey just completed by the Institute. It is a reflection of the fact that in the past few years big business has won far more favor with the public than have the unions. It also suggests that in the postwar era the pendulum of public opinion is likely to swing toward the conservative ideas of businessmen rather than toward the reform ideas of liberals in the labor movement.

The issue was put to a true cross-section of the voting population in all the 48 states as follows:

"Most people believe the government should not be controlled by any one group. However, if you HAD to choose which would you prefer to have control of the government—big business or labor unions?"

The vote follows:

Big Business	13%
Labor Unions	26
Undecided	29

third to continue the stalemate. Weber scored the lone Coke run in the first of the third on a passed ball by catcher Moran. Cochert, also attempting to cross the plate, was thrown out, shortstop Evans to Moran.

Coke added another run in the first of the fifth to go into a one run lead. The run was scored by Reichardt, who first walked, stole second, came to third on a single by Watt Merchant and settled safely on home platter after a bobble by short fielder Darrel Roseberry of Epworth.

Weber, who blasted two for three for Coke last night, also chalked up the final Coke run in the first of the seventh. He lined a screaming double and came on another two-bagger by catcher Reichardt, who had for himself an exceptional night.

Anti-Strike Law May Undergo Court Test

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21—The possibility of a court test on constitutionality of the Smith-Connally act was seen today in an attack on the labor disputes law by Montgomery Ward and Company, Inc.

The war labor board, rejecting a company contention that the act went beyond what the Constitution permits, ordered union security, voluntary dues check-off and arbitration of grievances at Montgomery Ward's New York, Detroit and Denver retail stores.

Constitutionality of the law was attacked by the company on grounds it delegated legislative powers to the board "without sufficient standards," and impaired freedom of contract by establishing "compulsory arbitration."

The Real Truth About General Winter

CHAPTER 13

IT WAS only about 100 miles from Moscow to the front. I rode for two days and sat up for two nights, trying to cover that distance—and I could not make it. That was my first lesson in the prowess of old General Winter. It taught me a lot about why the Germans, fighting both the Red army and winter, could not cover the same distance from the front to Moscow.

That lesson also taught me that General Winter and not belong to the Red army. If he did, he should have been shot for treason, because he opposed the Russians just as much as he did the Germans. He was fighting for no one but himself.

We heard in Moscow, during that first winter of war, that a vague idea had gone abroad that winter was all on the Russians' side; that all the Germans' woes were due entirely to the weather, and not at all to the Red army. It would have been very hard to sell that idea to men who fought the Germans to a standstill before Moscow, and then bunched their way through snow and bitter cold to drive back the enemy. They too, suffered and died at the hands of General Winter.

But two factors did favor the Russians in that first winter campaign. The weather was less severe on the defender than on the attacker, and since the Germans were on the offensive at the crucial point of the campaign, where the great issue was whether they would take or fail to take Moscow, they were at a disadvantage. Then the Russians were fully prepared for winter with their felt boots, padded jackets, fur hats, and winter capes, their skis, sleds, and sleighs, while the Germans were completely unprepared—as ghastly, almost inconceivable error on the part of an supposedly brilliant high command.

So victory in the first winter campaign went to the Russians—not decisive as ever very far reaching victory because General Winter was still there, fighting only for himself and against the Red army's counter-offensive, but nevertheless clear-cut victory.

I HAD a personal introduction to General Winter on a trip to the front. It was supposed to be General Belov's sector, but before we got there, we crossed General Winter, and this time we lost by a complete knockout.

We left the Metropole just before noon December 15 in three big ZIS cars, the Soviet version of a Buick, manufactured in the Stalin plant, Moscow. Just before nightfall we reached Kolomna, a quiet little town which had only recently been an immediate objective of battle and which still hid behind its barricades. There we stopped to find a side road which would take us thirty miles southwest to Kashira. There, also, one of the ZIS cars decided it would go no farther.

While the drivers [illegible] discuss these two problems, [illegible] chief of the Soviet press [illegible] and me were [illegible] a store, [illegible] and we were [illegible] a restaurant. [illegible] there were [illegible] warmth, and [illegible] Bowls of steaming [illegible] and pates [illegible] of red caviar [illegible] delicacies were produced. [illegible] Belov [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] Chernyshov [illegible] with whom we [illegible] the trip.

Outside, after supper, we found a [illegible] Outside the darkness had fallen [illegible] and there had been [illegible] from the [illegible] west through the fields and [illegible] east, but did not by telegraph poles which should be [illegible] The second was that the passengers from the stalled ZIS would be transferred to the other two cars.

We turned away from the [illegible] main road, the chaussee of the Moscow [illegible] road, into the wide, empty borderland of the Steppes. The car [illegible] as it was designed to [illegible] the tank's engine [illegible] in the snow. Its [illegible] picked out, one after another, the [illegible] weather-beaten telegraph poles that stood like beacons amid pools of blackness.

Suddenly, the car [illegible] again, in that way of [illegible] of skidding in Russia [illegible] through the atmosphere, [illegible] by its over-saturation, could sustain its burden no longer and precipitated the heavy, [illegible] mass to earth. Our headlights were deflected, as though a thick white sheet had been hung immediately in front of them. The path disappeared in the untracked fields.

WE PRESSED on to the next telegraph pole. Beyond that, nothing was visible in the blinding swirls of snow. The driver stopped, went forward on foot to find the direction, probing with his feet for the road under the snow and peering ahead for another pole. With a new bearing, he tried to drive on again.

Abruptly, the car listed off the road, burying its right side in a ditch and pelting up to the hub-caps in soft snow. A grinding sound and a shout from behind told us that the other ZIS had taken the same path.

The drivers made a few half-hearted efforts to churn their way back to the road. They were hopeless.

'Let's face it, chums,' said Philip Jordan of the London News Chronicle, 'we're here for the night.'

Outside, there seemed to be a faint black line of trees in the distance, and before that, only the unbroken sweep of snow. Nowhere were there any signs of human life.

This, I thought, must be how the German motorized infantry felt, stalled in troop carriers while trying to reach Moscow. At least, we did not have to worry about personal foes creeping up on us with hand-grenades and automatic rifles. We were secure behind the Red army lines. Our only foe was the impersonal General Winter.

He was a very real enemy out there, whining weirdly, striking savagely at any living thing exposed to him on the steppe, making existence seem impossible. The wind, screaming and scratching at the doors and windows began to penetrate the car. The snow drifted higher and higher. The cold settled closer and closer.

For a while we talked of that, and of people freezing to death, and of wolves roaming these steppes in packs. We swapped jokes, but after a while we reached the point where everyone had heard all that anyone could recall.

We twitched and fidgeted in our cramped quarters, sitting straight upright, and finally dozed fitfully until the pale gray dawn leaked over the horizon. Palgunov trudged through the snow, bringing a box of chocolates and another jug of Chartreuse for breakfast. Soon an army truck came down the road, plowing its way easily through the drifts. The troops leaped out, heaved our cars from the ditch back onto the road, and broke a path for us to the Moscow-Kashira highway. A day late, we reached our first destination — the same kind of tardiness that ruined the schedule of the German offensive.

That second evening we drove out of Kashira toward General Belov's headquarters. This time it was a clear, starlit night. The wind whipped the snow from the road, baring a treacherous coat of ice. We rode four miles south, nearly to Plalnitsa, farthest point of the German advance on the left flank of the Moscow defenses. There the road dipped into a steep valley. The cars skidded to the bottom of the decline, started up the other side, and could not reach the top. Several times they backed down and tried again, their tires shrieking on the ice, but each time they failed to get sufficient traction and came to a standstill. There was nothing to do but turn around and return to Kashira. But the hill we had descended was equally impassable. We were stranded for the second night.

'Let's face it, chums,' Philip started to say.

'Face it, nothing, let's fool it,' interrupted another correspondent.

So we decided to walk back to Kashira rather than sit up again in the cars.

The next morning we abandoned our trip and drove ignominiously back to Moscow, covering in a few hours the same distance it had taken us two days to ride on the outward drive. We had not reached the front. But we had learned very intimately, to a lesser degree but to some extent, what the Germans had run up against from General Winter alone, in their drive on Moscow. I started to think what it might have been like with the Red army, as well as the weather, on the opposition.

Boy Scouts Help "Keep 'Em Flying" With Poster Work

Boy Scouts throughout the Harding area have placed numerous "Keep 'Em Flying" posters in public places in 13 communities as their part in a nationwide drive conducted by the Boy Scouts of America to increase civilian backing of the Army Air Forces.

This poster campaign got under way a few weeks ago when General H. H. Arnold, head of the Air Corps, appealed to national Scouting officials to "do a good turn for the Army Air Forces" by placing 5,000,000 "Keep 'Em Flying" posters in public places the country over.

Hugh Ray, Scout executive of the Harding area council, has announced that all posters received at local Scout headquarters have been issued to all Harding area troops who have, in turn, distributed them among business establishments or other public places in their communities.

"Keep 'Em Flying" posters may be seen at various focal spots in Marion or in any of the following area communities: Bucyrus, Upper Sandusky, Mt. Gilead, Morral, Sycamore, Carey, Nevada, Harpster, Chesterville, Cardington, Prospect, and LaRue.

By distributing the posters, Area Boy Scouts as well as Scouts throughout the nation, have "contributed beyond measure to the efforts of the Army Air Forces and have assured their part in assuring and hastening the winning of the war," according to Dr. Elbert K. Fretwell, chief Scout executive of the Boy Scouts of America.

Several months ago, Boy Scouts were designated as official dispatch bearers of the Office of War Information by President Roosevelt. Area Executive Hay reports area Scouts, under the direction of local leaders, especially the Chamber of Commerce, have carried many messages of varying importance since the designation.

All Star Grid Tilt Wednesday To Be on Air

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK,

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

KATHARINE went swiftly out of my sitting room, and I heard her knock on the camouflaged communicating door between my balcony suite and the adjoining one. Dicky must have answered her summons immediately, for it was but a few seconds before he followed her back into the sitting room and bent over my chair with a caressing pat on my shoulder.

"Welcome home from the wars!" he said.

Then he drew a chair near me and settled himself in it after Katharine had sat down at the desk near the telephone.

"I don't know Milner will telephone again," she said. "But he's unpredictable, and he seems to have something terrific on his alleged mind which he's yearning to ask you."

A Phony Story

"Whatever story he tells when he gets here will be a phony," Dicky commented. "He's simply said to know if Madge is really here, and has been here all the morning. We'll tell you all about it as soon as the Chief gets here. But before we begin our saga, we'll ask him what's to be done about Miller."

"I'll surely be glad to have the responsibility lifted from my shoulders," Katharine said. "For the last hour or two I've been experting him to come down here with tommy guns, snickersnees and tomahawks."

"Well, your scalp will be safe now," Dicky assured her, and then we were silent until my father's signaling knock sounded on the door.

Turns to Katharine

Katharine turned to the door and admitted him. When he had greeted us he turned to her.

"Milner has been asking about seeing Margaret, has he not?"

"Insistent is a feeble word," she said serenely.

"I thought so," he said frowning. "I think before we proceed to anything else, we must convince him not only that she is here now, but that she has not left the room at any time this morning. Do you think that if you telephone him she has just awakened, and though still feeling ill, will see him in 15 minutes, that you can fix her up in that time to look pale and suffering?"

"Indeed I can," Katharine said promptly, "and Madge's dramatic ability will enable her to act the part as well as look it. Shall I telephone him now?"

"Please!" and as Katharine walked to the telephone, she tossed instructions at me.

"Wash your face, then let down your hair, and plait it in two braids."

I obeyed at once, but left the bathroom door open that I might miss no word of what she was saying to Milner.

The Professional Touch

"Mr. Milner?" she said, with just the right "professional nurse touch". "This is Mrs. Bickett. Mrs. Graham has just awakened, and I have given her your message."

There was a pause, and then she spoke again.

"Yes, she will see you. But I cannot permit her to talk for another quarter of an hour. She needs my professional care for a little while. If you care to come down in 15 minutes you may see her then. Good-bye."

She turned from the telephone with an amused little laugh.

"I thought he was going to send a kiss over the wire!" she said, adding: "Ah, Madge, — quick work!" as I came through the bathroom door, with one side of my hair plaited, and working busily at the other. "You heard what I said to Milner. I'll wager."

"Nobody's going to take your hair, Katrina," Dicky drawled. "The little gal had both ears and mouth wide open."

A Pain-Racked Invalid

"But she wasn't so absorbed that she forgot to do her stuff," Katharine said approvingly. "She even got into a house coat and slippers. Lie down here, my friend, while I transform you into a pain-racked invalid."

"That will be small potatoes for Madge after what Halloran did to her," Dicky remarked. You ought to have seen her as a slightly decrepit chambermaid, Katrina. She was a knock-out! But I managed to get a candid camera shot of her."

"Dicky, you didn't!" I protested frantically.

But my husband gestured to my father.

"Chief's orders," he said surprisingly.

Women Fliers For Army Now WASPS

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Now there are WASPS in the Army Air Forces.

That's the name which Gen. Henry H. Arnold, AAF commander, has picked for the women pilots in the air forces. Spelled out, WASP is Women's Airforce Service Pilot.

The WASPS include pilots of the women's auxiliary ferrying squadron, formerly known as WAFS, those of the women's auxiliary flying training detachment, better known as WFTD, and those assigned to other flying services within the air forces.

The Stars Say—

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, Aug. 22

Sunday's horoscope holds good encouragement for all spiritual, mystical, and idealistic activities and aspirations, but more material objectives may not enjoy desired progress. This could be due too only to erratic, peculiar or impulsive conduct, but those in influence and authority may withhold their support.

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by a year in which the outcome depends upon individual integrity, cleverness and self-control. With restraint of erratic, crafty and curious outbursts, offensive to superiors and those who might give solid support, there might be excellent results.

For Monday, Aug. 23

Monday's astrological forecast shows a sudden and exciting burst of enterprise and initiative by the unexpected turn of events, promising progress and rich adventure. Impulses and ambitions may be spurred to high tension by a surprising advent of opportunity, which may involve radical change and new environs.

Those whose birthday it is are encouraged to grasp with ardor, enthusiasm, enterprise and ingenuity a sudden opportunity, promising adventure, romance, expansive financial and credit stability, with many private as well as public acts of approval and appreciation.

AMBASSADOR'S SON IN RAID.

By The Associated Press

AT A U. S. BOMBER STATION IN ENGLAND, Aug. 21.—Lt. John G. Winant Jr., son of the United States ambassador to Britain, was among the Flying Fortress pilots who bombed Germany Aug. 17 and went on to land in North Africa, it was disclosed yesterday. This was the U. S. AAF's first shuttle assault on the continent. It was also Winant's first raid.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Hand Care

THE ETERNAL feminine is proving pretty important in the present conflict, but if my reports are reliable she is still the eternal feminine. She has pitched in and is doing a swell job of war work. Not at all infrequently this involves getting her hands dirty, not to say filthy, and even to go further, getting them covered with grime, grease, chemicals and acids.

She keeps on doing her job and doing it very well, but the eternal feminine creeps out just the same as it did before the war, and probably will when Macaulay's New Zealander is seated in London Bridge sketching the ruins of St. Paul's, so she wants to have soft, white hands in the evening when she starts in with her heavy dating.

As a matter of fact, the Health and Safety Directors at war plants want her to keep her hands as feminine as possible because for a variety of reasons this tends to reduce trouble and accidents. In many plants counselling of the workers on the care of the hands is part of the regular safety advice.

Here are some of the suggestions that come from headquarters:

Wash off grime, grease and chemicals as soon as possible and do a thorough job. But try not to injure the skin as you are doing so. Use a small brush and the mildest cleanser that will do a thorough job. After drying the skin rub in hand lotion, or cream. A jar should be kept in the locker so that it can be used as faithfully as soap. If it is necessary to use a strong or harsh soap to cut the kind of grease you deal in, have a cream rich in lanolin to use immediately.

Dry skin is likely to be smooth and healthy skin, and wet skin is likely to lead to cracks, fissures and ringworm infection. So dry the hands thoroughly even though you are going to use cream afterwards.

Dislodge grime and grease from the nail tips by running a cuticle remover under the nails with an orangewood stick. These should also, therefore, be part of the standard equipment of the locker. Dig your nails into a jar of cream before going on the job. You will have less trouble dislodging grime after the work is over. Keep nails at moderate lengths. The National Safety Council recommends that for heavy work the nails should be kept even with the tip of the finger. In fact, I should say this is good advice for everybody—heavy worker or not.

Hangnails are natural attractions for infection and should be treated by someone who is experienced at manicuring work. Snip it off at once and see that it is kept clean with an antiseptic. Soften cuticle with oil occasionally and push it back with an orangewood stick.

Nail polish is a good protective: it can be used often and thoroughly.

When the hands get stiff and tense from close work, relax them by shaking them vigorously from the wrist.
